

Title:	War on Terror Policy
Lecture hours:	20
Study period: (summer/winter)	Summer or winter semester depending on the student's choice
Number of credits:	5
Assessment methods:	discussion during classes, oral exam
Language of instruction:	English
Prerequisites:	None
Course content:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Definition of terror and terrorism - Types of terrorism - Terrorism in the international law - Attributes of terrorist act - Terrorism as a global phenomenon - Reasons for the escalation of terrorism at the turn of the century - Characteristic of the war on terror policy - The main criticism of the war on terror - Combating terrorism in Afghanistan and Iraq
Learning outcomes:	The aim of the course is to familiarize students with the issues of international terrorism and ways to combat the phenomenon.
Name of lecturer:	Dr Łukasz Jureńczyk
Contact (email address):	lukaszjurenczyk@o2.pl, lukaszjurenczyk@ukw.edu.pl
Literature:	I. Chernus, Monsters to destroy. The Neoconservative war on terror and sin, 2006. G. Friedman, America's Secret War. Inside the Worldwide Struggle Between the United States and Its Enemies, 2006. S. G. Jones, In the Graveyard of Empires. America's War in Afghanistan, 2010. J. Mayer, The Dark Side. The Inside Story of How the War on Terror Turned into a

	War on American Ideals, 2009. P. W. Galbraith, The End of Iraq. How American Incompetence Created a War Without End, 2006.
--	---